HOW TO USE
BOWKER'S GUIDE TO CHARACTERS IN FICTION
2004

This is the introductory edition of Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction, with Volume 1 devoted to adult fiction and Volume 2 to children's fiction. As the title implies, a large portion of this book is dedicated to fiction featuring a specific character; however, other topics covered in a fictional manner are also addressed (such as ethnic groups and settings). Like most of Bowker's bibliographic directories, it was produced from the Books In Print database. Unlike most of our directories, it brings together books published in three different formats (print, audio, electronic) and includes out-of-print, out-of-stock, and on-demand titles alongside active titles. Virtually none of the items listed in either volume appear in Bowker's Subject Guide to Books In Print, making this the perfect companion to our more established publication. Besides the main index, each volume features a List of Subject Headings, a Publisher Index, and a Wholesaler & Distributor Index.

CLASSIFICATION

Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction follows the headings assigned by the Library of Congress for cases where LC has established a fiction-related heading. It should be noted that while children's fiction has long been classified by topic, it has been only ten years since LC began classifying children's fiction by fictitious character or imaginary setting, and adult fiction at all. For already established headings, "—FICTION" was merely added as a subdivision (e.g., POLICEWOMEN—FICTION). However, for characters and settings, thousands of new headings had to be created, from BAMBI (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) to BENNET, ELIZABETH (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) to BOND, JAMES (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER), before "—FICTION" could be appended. Bowker has always patterned our classification after LC, so we also started to create fiction-related headings in the manner of LC and began applying these to incoming data as well as to titles already in our database (like LC, we had already been classifying children's fiction by topic). As you can imagine, retroactive classification was a massive undertaking. To focus our efforts, we commissioned research to determine under which broad topics readers were most likely to request fiction. The results of this research enabled us to target our efforts, and have also determined the seven topical sections of each main index: Characters, Ethnic Groups, Historical Events, Miscellaneous, Occupations, Relationships, and Settings (each of which is discussed in detail below under ARRANGEMENT AND USAGE OF SUBJECTS). We used classification by the Library of Congress when possible to help determine the headings assigned. However, for areas in which LC is not strong (for example, original paperbacks), other sources were used as well. Several appropriate subjects were assigned, so a book may appear multiple times per section, as well as in several sections.

Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction Volume 1 (Adult Fiction) contains approximately 142,550 entries appearing 154,000 times under 4,180 populated headings. Volume 2 (Children's Fiction) contains some 64,000 entries appearing 68,000 times under 1,090 subject headings. This first edition includes roughly 88,300 in-print books, 8,700 audiobooks, and 3,270 e-books. We also include 3,065 on-demand titles in addition to titles recently declared out-of stock or out-of-print. No entries appear in both volumes.

For the headings in the Ethnic Groups, Historical Events, Miscellaneous, Occupations, and Relationships sections we based the style of the heading on that of LC. For the Characters and Settings sections, we based any real characters and settings on LC, as well as any fictitious characters or imaginary settings for which LC had authority records. However, we have gone well beyond LC classification in this regard. LC generally only establishes a heading for fictitious characters and imaginary settings if they appear in three or more works - we decided not to set such a limit and have added headings whenever we thought that they would be useful. When this was done, we still adhered to general LC policy for these types of headings (for example, characters are listed under their surnames, when appropriate). LC bibliographic and subject authority information can be found at http://catalog.loc.gov.

In general, Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction includes any work of adult or children's fiction that has been assigned a Bowker subject ending with "—FICTION" that fits into one of the topical sections (and note that the "—FICTION" subdivision has been retained for each heading). There is no distinction made between novels, single-author short story collections, and multiple author anthologies (although it is less common for anthologies to focus on a specific character, occupation, setting, etc., so the majority of works included are by a single author). That being said, there are several types of related works that it might help to specifically state are excluded:

- Literary criticism dealing with a fictitious character or imaginary setting is not included, but can be found in Subject Guide to Books In Print under unsubdivided subjects; (e.g., COMPSON, CADDY (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER); YOKNAPATAWPHA COUNTY (IMAGINARY PLACE).
- Drama and poetry are excluded, even if they feature a character, setting, etc. that has been included.
- Works discussing other aspects of a character are excluded (e.g, no works on Mickey Mouse collectibles or James Bond movies).

Much effort has been put into identifying children's versions of classics and classifying them appropriately. In some cases, this has led to a character appearing in both volumes (e.g., HEATHCLIFF (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION). We tried to limit the definition of "children's version" to mean cases where works generally considered as being for adults were abridged or adapted specifically for younger readers. However, in cases where we were not able to determine this, we went with the publisher's information

- if they told us that their edition of Wuthering Heights was a children's edition, then we listed it in the Children's volume, even if it was textually the same as the standard edition.

GENERAL EDITORIAL POLICIES

Current information was solicited from all publishers in the Books In Print database. These publishers include participants in Bowker's Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) program as well as publishers who regularly submit Advance Book Information (ABI) forms and their current book catalogs. Less active publishers are asked to review their active titles on checklists or online at www.bowkerlink.com and every effort was made to get up-to-date, complete information on all titles included in Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction. All prices and availability are subject to change without notice.

ARRANGEMENT AND USAGE OF SUBJECTS

The first principle of Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction was to classify a book using the most specific heading(s) under which someone was likely to look. So if you are interested in a book taking place in a particular city, first look under that city (or even under an area within a city). If nothing is found, then try the next broadest area (such as a state or province) and then continue in this manner through broader terms (such as country, region, or continent). It is possible that a book will be found under both a city and state, or a country and a continent, but it is advised to try the narrowest term first. It should be noted that publishers do not always distinguish between England and Great Britain when conveying information to us, so users are advised to try both place names. Each volume is divided into sections as noted below. Any rules or explanations given apply to both volumes unless stated. Examples may appear in one or both volumes, but a heading will only appear in one section of each volume.

Characters

This section includes headings for real people (e.g., ROOSEVELT, ELEANOR, 1884-1962—FICTION), as well as fictitious and legendary characters (e.g., BROWN, CHARLIE (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION; MERLIN (LEGENDARY CHARACTER)—FICTION). If a character has a surname, he or she will generally be listed under that name. If someone is known primarily (or only) by a title or rank, then that will be included in the heading, but the person will still be listed under his or her surname (e.g., AHAB, CAPTAIN (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) —FICTION); COLUMBO, LIEUTENANT (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER —FICTION). Superheroes are generally listed under their assumed identity (e.g., CAPTAIN UNDERPANTS (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION; SPIDER-MAN (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION). Characters with the same name are differentiated by including the author's surname in the heading (e.g., ARTHUR (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER : BROWN)—FICTION; ARTHUR (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER : HOBAN)—FICTION). Besides individual characters, there are headings for combinations of characters, which can take the forms of relatives, families, or other types of groupings (e.g., ARMITAGE SISTERS (FICTITIOUS CHARACTERS)—FICTION; ADDAMS FAMILY (FICTITIOUS CHARACTERS)—FICTION; X-MEN (FICTITIOUS CHARACTERS)—FICTION). Sometimes two characters who always appear together have heen combined into one heading (e.g., WALLACE AND GROMIT (FICTITIOUS CHARACTERS)—FICTION).

Ethnic Groups

This section includes headings for ethnic groups (e.g., CHINESE AMERICANS—FICTION), headings that are usually associated with ethnic groups (e.g., KIBBUTZIM—FICTION; KWANZAA—FICTION), and headings related to a specific religion, whether or not that religion is primarily associated with an ethnic group (e.g., MENNONITES—FICTION).

Historical Events

The history-related headings in the Adult volume (Volume 1) almost all pertain to a particular war or conflict (e.g., UNITED STATES—HISTORY—WAR OF 1812—FICTION; VIETNAMESE CONFLICT, 1961-1975—FICTION), with an occasional non-military heading (e.g., FRONTIER AND PIONEER LIFE—FICTION). The history-related headings in the Children's volume (Volume 2) include most of what's in the Adult volume plus headings that relate to an event, place, time period, or other aspect of history (e.g., BOSTON TEA PARTY, 1773—FICTION; BRONZE AGE—FICTION; EGYPT—HISTORY—FICTION; MOGUL EMPIRE—FICTION; PONY EXPRESS—FICTION). Note that the Historical Events and Settings sections are both worth checking if you are looking for a book that takes place in a real setting in the past.

Miscellaneous

For the Adult volume this section represents the handful of headings ending with "—FICTION" that did not fit into any other section. There were about 1,000 children's fiction headings that did not fit into the other sections (remembering that children's fiction classification has been going on much longer than adult fiction classification), so for the Children's volume we decided to offer a selection of headings related to fantasy or the supernatural (e.g., DRAGONS—FICTION; GHOSTS—FICTION; GIANTS—FICTION; MERMAIDS—FICTION; WIZARDS—FICTION). The Subject Guide to Children's Books In Print contains all children's fiction (and, of course, nonfiction).

Occupations

While most headings in this section relate to what one would generally call an occupation (e.g., COLLEGE TEACHERS—FICTION; JOURNALISTS—FICTION), some headings in the Children's volume might be more accurately described as "things people do" (e.g., APPRENTICES—FICTION; EXPLORERS—FICTION).

Relationships

This section includes headings dealing with family and interpersonal relationships (e.g., DATING (SOCIAL CUSTOMS)—FICTION; FATHERS AND SONS—FICTION; GRANDPARENTS—FICTION; MARRIAGE—FICTION; TWINS—FICTION; WIDOWS—FICTION). It has been extended somewhat to include GAY MEN—FICTION and LESBIANS—FICTION as well. Note that relationships involving recognizable characters may be covered by a heading in the Characters section.

Settings

Included here are headings for real places (e.g., BEVERLY HILLS (CALIF.)—FICTION; CALIFORNIA—FICTION; WEST (U.S.)—FICTION), as well as imaginary and legendary places (e.g., CAMELOT (LEGENDARY PLACE)—FICTION; TREASURE ISLAND (IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION). If an imaginary setting has been identified as existing within a real place, that will be noted (e.g., CABOT COVE (ME : IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION). Settings can range from specific schools, streets, hotels, etc. (e.g., FORTY-THREE LIGHT STREET (IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION; ROSWELL HIGH (NM : IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION) to planets (e.g., DUNE (IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION). Note that the Settings and Historical Events sections are both worth checking if you are looking for a book that takes place in a real setting in the past.

Within each section, the presentation of subject headings is alphabetical; however, in accordance with the Library of Congress, the following rules are followed:

- Headings beginning with "Da" and "De" are treated as if there were no space.
- Headings beginning with "Mc" and "Mac" are treated as if they all began with "Mac".
- "Saint" and "St." are treated as alphabetical equals.
- Apostrophes are ignored.
- Hyphens are treated as spaces.
- Real people and fictitious characters are interfiled alphabetically (as are real settings and imaginary ones).

Below are some examples of sequencing. Note that headings may appear between the examples given, and that the examples are all from the Characters section in the Adult volume (although the rules apply to all sections in both volumes).

AUSTEN, CAT (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION

AUSTEN, JANE, 1775-1817—FICTION

There are also "see" references provided to lead users from the heading they are looking at to the heading under which books are actually listed, although these are not as extensive as in Subject Guide to Books In Print. Subjects with a "see" reference do not have books listed under them. References have generally been added when a person or place is known by more than one name, or when it is not clear if a person is listed under his or her full name or surname. For example:

ADEPT, THE (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION
see Sinclair, Adam (Fictitious Character)—Fiction

BEDELIA, AMELIA (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION
see Amelia-Bedelia (Fictitious Character)—Fiction

CASTLE AMBER (IMAGINARY PLACE)—FICTION

see Kenobi, Obi-Wan (Fictitious Character)—Fiction

SHIRLEY, ANNE (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER)—FICTION
see Anne of Green Gables (Fictitious Character)—Fiction

Note that "see" references will only appear in the volumes and sections in which they are appropriate.

LIST OF SUBJECT HEADINGS

While in most cases it will be obvious what section a heading will be in (and where it will appear in that section), there are cases where it may not be immediately apparent. To help in the search, we have provided an index at the beginning of each volume that is arranged first by section and then within each section by the sequence in which the headings appear. Furthermore, page references are provided to lead you directly to the heading. Below is an example from the Characters index in Volume 1:

BATMAN (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) p.49
BATTLE, SUPERINTENDENT (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) p.50
BAUER, TORY (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) p.50
BAUER, VICKY (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) p.50
BAUM, STEVEN (FICTITIOUS CHARACTER) p.51

Note that in this list, the subdivision "—FICTION" has been suppressed from the end of the heading.

ALPHABETICAL ARRANGEMENT OF ENTRIES WITHIN SUBJECT

After arrangement by section and by subject, entries are arranged alphabetically by author (or other contributor, if no author is given). If no contributor is present, the entry is filed by title within the contributor arrangement. Contributors' names in Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction have been alphabetized using the following rules:

- Proper names beginning with "Mc" and "Mac" are filed in strict alphabetical order. For example, entries for names such as Mac Adam, MacAvory, and MacCarthy are located prior to entries for names such as McAdam, McCoy, and McDermott.
- Compound names are listed under their first component. For example, Van Holland is listed under Van.
- When contributor names are represented with initials, they are alphabetized before contributor first names. For example, Smith, H. C. appears before Smith, Harold A.
- If more than two contributors performing the same function are responsible for a given title, then only the name of the first is given, followed by "et al".

INFORMATION INCLUDED IN ENTRIES

Entries include the following bibliographic information (when available): author, co-author, editor, co-editor, translator, co-translator, original language, title, subtitle, title volume number, number of volumes, edition, publication year, series information, original title, current language if other than English, whether or not illustrated, number of pages, whether a book is an original paperback, audience, grade range, binding/format if other than cloth over boards, price, status if other than active or on-demand, ISBN, order number, imprint, and publisher name.

PUBLISHER NAME INDEX

Indexes to publisher names are found in both volumes (containing more than 2,690 publishers used in the bibliographic entries of Volume 1 and over 2,560 publishers used in the bibliographic entries of Volume 2). Entries in these indexes contain (when available): publisher name, ISBN prefix(es), business affiliation, ordering address(es), SAN (Standard Address Number), telephone number(s), fax and toll-free number(s), editorial address(es) and associated contact numbers, imprints, e-mail and Web site address(es), and the distributors who handle this publisher. Publishers with like or similar names include a "Do not confuse with..." notation within the entry. A dagger (†) preceding a publisher's name and the note "CIP" at the end of an entry indicate that the publisher participates in the Cataloging in Publication Program of the Library of Congress. Full information for distributors, as well as 1,000 book wholesalers, is found in the Wholesaler & Distributor Name Index (in both volumes). Note that publishers who also serve as distributors may be listed both here and in the Publisher Name Index. Foreign publishers with U.S. distributors are listed, followed by their three-character ISO (International Standards Organization) country code ("GBR," "CAN," etc.), ISBN prefix(es), if available, and a cross-reference to their U.S. distributor, as shown below:

Addison-Wesley Longman, Ltd. (GBR) (0-582) Dist. by Trans-Atl Phila.

In addition, cross-references are provided from imprints to their publisher and from former company name to new name.

WHOLESALER & DISTRIBUTOR NAME INDEX

The Wholesaler & Distributor Name Index is arranged alphabetically by company name and contains (when available): company name, ISBN prefix(es), business affiliation, full address and ordering information, SAN(s), telephone number(s), fax and toll-free number(s), e-mail and Web site address(es). Wholesalers and distributors with like or similar names include a "Do not confuse with..." notation within the entry.

ISBN AGENCY

164,700 of the entries included in Bowker's Guide to Characters In Fiction have been assigned an International Standard Book Number (ISBN) by the publisher. All ISBNs listed in this volume have been validated by using the check digit control, ensuring accuracy.

Note: The ISBN prefix 0-615 is for decentralized use by the U.S. ISBN Agency and has been assigned to numerous publishers. This prefix is not unique to one exclusive publisher.

ISBNs allow order transmission and bibliographic information updating using the Book Industry Standards and Communications (BISAC) standard format for data transmission. Publishers not currently participating in the ISBN system may request the assignment of an ISBN Publisher Prefix from the ISBN Agency by calling 877-310-7333, fax 908-219-0188, or through the ISBN/SAN Web site at www.isbn.org.

SAN AGENCY

A feature of the publishers, distributors, and wholesalers entries is the Standard Address Number (SAN). The SAN is a unique identification number assigned to each address of an organization in or served by the publishing industry. It facilitates communications and repetitive transactions with other members of the industry. The SAN functions in its application to activities such as purchasing, billing, shipping, receiving, paying, crediting, and refunding, and can be used for any other communication or transaction between participating organizations. To obtain an application or further information on the SAN system, please contact Diana Luongo, SAN Manager, by calling 908-219-0283, fax 908-219-0188, or visit the ISBN/SAN Web site at www.isbn.org.
